For William

- Photogrammetric documentation of the Caroline's Dungeon —→

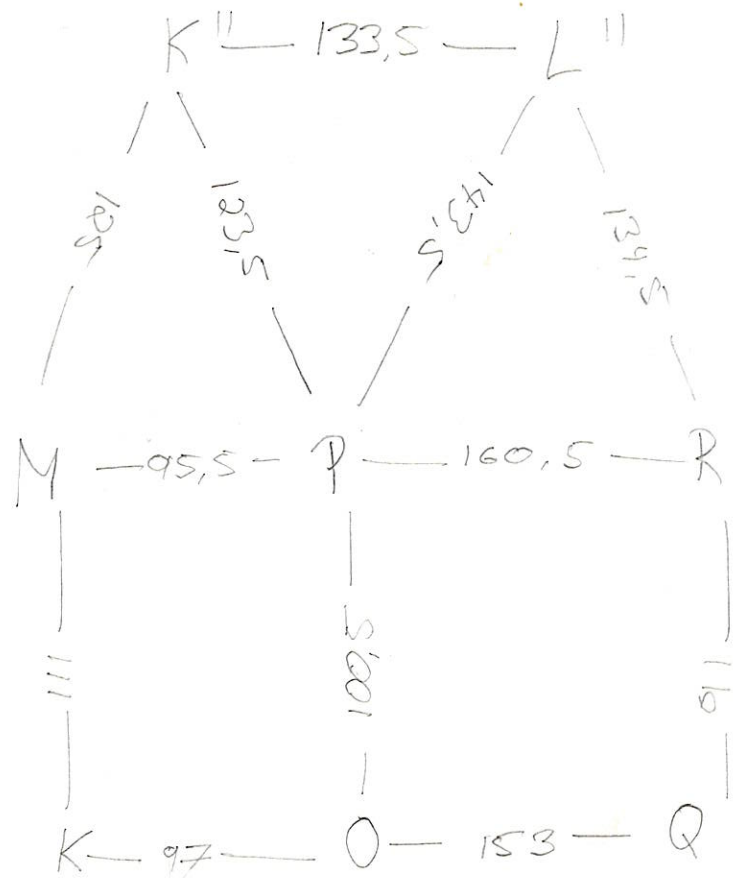

↳ the measurements of Temperature, Humidity, and light

- Meetings with members (also ^{Roundly} and chief) of local communities → possible at all!

I could get a sense of the extreme conditions while working in this dungeon, and especially while taking the photographs. Time seemed much longer than it actually was when taking the pictures in the dungeon. Humidity (>90%) and temperatures (~28,5°C) made me sweat like crazy. There was mold all over the walls. The ventilation opening didn't seem to help.

Fort Nassau

- Built in 1612 by the Netherlands
- Occupied by the Dutch until 1868
- Nowadays it is ~~a~~ in the center of the town of Moree with modern houses on it

I cannot make the videos for Elekta and Karl here that I usually do. It is impossible to explain the slave dungeons to them (they are also too young). I can also not make a video of the sea or something ~~else~~ else for them without mentioning the forts and their dungeons next to it.
